

Metaphors and Similes

Meet Tennyson the Turtle

He enjoys using metaphors and similes when telling tales.

A metaphor is a figure of speech, a phrase or sentence, by which a thing is spoken of as being that which is only resembles.

Example: Tennyson's eyes are pitch black pebbles.

A simile is a type of metaphor in which the comparison is made with the use of the word like or as.

Example: Tennyson's eyes are like pitch black pebbles.

Write the examples you find of each on the lines below the story

My home, a moss covered rock, is an emerald fortress. It provides shelter from the heavy springtime showers, when the raindrops are like large iridescent pearls. My rock is neighbors with a weeping willow tree. Its branches are thick snakes, but to the children who come to swim from town, the willow is a majestic pirate ship. I peek my head between the daisies to watch the kids in bright colored swimsuits plunge into the pool from the tips of the willow's branches. The water's surface is like a shattered mirror. A frenzy of ripples take over the pond, and the lily pads twirl like dancers whom suddenly have the mad desire to switch partners. I fancy the idea of surfing the pond's wild waves one day!
